

LOOTER EXECUTED.

Body Roped to Post, With Warning to Ghoul on Placard.

Halifax, Dec. 12.—A man was discovered looting yesterday in the devastated region. He was immediately shot. The body was roped to a post. Above his head the following placard was posted:

"This was a looter."

Col. Thompson, when questioned at military headquarters regarding the summary execution of the looter, declared no other means of dealing "with that kind of swine," would prove effective. The exposure of the bullet-riddled body, he said, would be a grim warning to others who might contemplate looting.

"We have no objection to the public knowing the nature of the punishment in extreme cases of this kind," he said.

Large numbers of workmen, laboring with feverish energy, succeeded before nightfall in restoring scores of damaged houses to such condition that they could be used.

Premier Borden yesterday received an appeal from some leading citizens requesting that the disaster be regarded by the government as of a war character. He was asked to see that industrial and other losses be made good by the government which was petitioned, through him, to hold itself responsible for the conditions rendering the explosion possible.

The official investigation, which was to have started yesterday, was postponed until today.

Still another sad stormy season interfered with the Red Cross work yesterday.

HANG NEGRO RIOTERS.

Secrecy Surrounding Court-Martial Revealed by Execution.

The veil of mystery which shrouded over six negro troops of the United States army, following their participation in race riots in the "shooting up" of the town of Houston, Tex., several months ago lifted yesterday.

Not a word had been heard from them or of them since the Houston incident. The veil lifted yesterday with a brief dispatch from Maj. Gen. Ruckman, commanding the Southern Department, to Adj. Gen. McCain. It announced the execution of thirteen of the mutineers, the sentence to life imprisonment of forty-one and the imprisonment for short term of four others, following sentence of court-martial.

Five were acquitted. The proceedings of the court-martial were secret, as is usual. The men who paid the extreme penalty were executed between Monday afternoon and yesterday morning, following approval of the court's findings by Gen. Ruckman.

It was explained at the War Department that all such court-martials are secret and that Gen. Ruckman had absolute authority in dealing with the findings. The War Department was not consulted and knew nothing until the dispatch yesterday.

THINKS U. S. NAVY LEADS.

Washington of Opinion That It Has Surpassed British, or is About to do so.

Has the United States become the first sea power of the world as a result of the enormous expansion of the naval establishment in the pre-war period and the period since the war began?

This has suddenly become one of the interesting questions of the hour in Washington, a question raised by the publication of the annual report of Secretary of the Navy Daniels containing a fund of highly important facts concerning American naval strength.

The answer is that Great Britain has not lost her primacy upon the seas, but that if the American navy continues its growth for another year at the same rate as in the year that passed and if Great Britain is unable to replace wastage of her warlike United States may expect to be listed among naval nations in all the contingencies.

Even now America has pushed far ahead of Germany in the climb for second place that there seems to be no possible way in which the German fighting fleets can ever again be a match for those of this country. Because of enormous losses sustained by the German navy it is even probable that France has displaced her as the third upon the list of naval powers.

It has been the losses borne by Great Britain upon the seas which have given the United States a chance to catch up in the friendly race between the two nations. For instance, it is known that the British navy has lost nearly a score of capital ships since the war began and three times as many more craft of smaller tonnage have gone down. Some of the vessels sunk were among the finest in the royal navy.

It has not only seemed impossible that it has been impossible for Great Britain to build warships as fast as she has lost them, maintaining her merchant ship construction at the same time. For that reason it is believed in Washington that she is weaker in actual fighting craft than at the beginning of the war.

ITALIANS HOLD POSITION.

Battle on Piave Delta Results in Defeat of Austro-Germans.

London, Dec. 12.—The battle on the Piave Delta, which opened Sunday by an Austro-German advance to the defenders' positions east of Capo Sile, about eight miles from the Adriatic, has ended in a brilliant victory for the Italians, the Roman office reports.

The entire position, situated within the area inundated by the Italian army in November when the enemy threatened a turning movement from the South, were recaptured Sunday night and held yesterday against powerful enemy efforts to win them back.

The losses of the Teuton force were extremely severe, the statement asserts, many dead being left on the battlefield and scores of prisoners being taken by the Italians.

GERMAN OFFENSIVE.

Showers of Shells Batter French and British Lines in Teutons' Supreme Effort.

London, Dec. 12.—A cyclone of German shells battering the French and British lines all the way from the Swiss border to the sea is ushering in Hindenburg's supreme effort to win the war in the west before America appears in force upon the fighting line.

Today is the anniversary of the central powers' peace offer to the allies. If the usual method is pursued, neat little leaflets will be scattered by the thousands among the German troops, with the legend:

"A year ago today we offered peace. They refused. Now let us win it by the force of arms."

TO EXTEND DRAFT LIMITS.

Congress Plans to Call Upon Men Recently Attaining Majority.

The drive to extend the draft age got under way yesterday.

Senator Wadsworth introduced in the Senate a bill to extend the selective service law to take in all youths who have attained the age of 21 since the June 5 registration. The bill further provides that a similar registration shall be held every six months thereafter, making subject to draft all youths reaching the voting age in the interim.

On a rough estimate this would bring 500,000 additional men into the draft every six months.

Simultaneously, it was made public at the office of Provost Marshal General Crowder that provision is being made in the new reclassification system which becomes effective

Saturday to include all fresh increments without the necessity of another registration or another draft. In the House of Representatives Julius Kahn, who steered the present draft law through that body, was preparing amendments to include youths of eighteen, nineteen, twenty and twenty-one. Those of the last named age would be made subject to draft immediately. The others would be given military training and would be subject to call when they reached the age of twenty-one.

The assertion was made that at least 2,000,000 men were expected to be found available for class 1 under the new regulations, and that the extant draft would come entirely from his class.

By the time of future drafts to train the army of 6,000,000 men, which the War Department expects to maintain as necessary, it was declared enough recruits would be brought in under the extension of the law to those now reaching twenty-one and under to assure a plentiful supply of men without necessarily calling upon married men with dependents, as listed in class 4.

NEWS OF THE DAY

German propaganda, which upset the Italian morale and ruined Russia's rear army, is now directed against the American troops. Not only have German propaganda newspapers been scattered among the American camps, but recently little cards, hitting the Americans to desert, have been showered from airplanes. The cards printed in German, announce that all the Americans are invited to enter Germany and "help in fighting for only a just cause, which is a German republic."

A Geneva dispatch to the Vossische Zeitung of Copenhagen, says that on receiving the cardinals December 2 the Pope will deliver an important "pronouncement on the question of peace."

German army officers aided Turkey in their wholesale killings of Armenians. Christians, Henry Morgenthau, former Ambassador to Turkey, declared yesterday in New York. He said Germany was principally to blame.

A 14-foot shark was caught by a fisherman in a shrimp trawler yesterday off Amelia Island, Florida. According to its size it was taken to be a shark and dissected. A man's head and hand in perfect condition and a whole marsh hen were found inside the monster.

Germany suffered a disaster comparable with a very serious military defeat in the explosion last month which destroyed the Griesheim chemical works near Frankfurt on the Main, one of the greatest munition factories in the world. It is said to be impossible to reconstruct the works during the war. The state
